Security Issue

11
Allen W. Dulles, a brother of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, is the chief of the Central Intelligence Agency of the United States Government. Work of this agency is more hush hush than even the activities of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Because of the very nature of its activities, it is compelled to eschew publicity.

How far should it be exempt from congressional committee scrutiny?

In answering this question, must not the security of the country always be given the primary consideration?
